EXTENSIVE FIRE AT DAYLIGHT. extensive livery stables of Mr. James tterson, on Washington street near King street, were destroyed by fire about 4 o'clock this morning. It was 3:40 a.m. when Everett toberts, the watchman at the stable, who slept to the office room near the front door, dis-overed sparks dropping from the loft. It sprung up and just at the same mo-ment Mr. Patterson, whose dwelling adjoins the table, discovered the flames rising near his ow, which overlooked the stable roof, and berts struck the door Patterson was on his sea. There were forty-eight of them and stable was all alight with the flaming prover above, while sparks rained through crevices of the second floor. A ready le cut each horse loose as the prietor and his assistant hurried through stable and in a short time forty-six of the y-eight horses had been freed, and every of them contrary to the common way of Washington street or the back alley which to St Asaph street. In the minute that ook to cut loose the horses the fire sped, roaring like a cyclone. Two horses remained in the stable, a fine steed of Mr. only remained in the stable, a line steed of Mr.
W. D. Ramsay and a horse of the Messrs. Weld.

As Mr. Patterson was reaching Mr. Ramsay's horse a burning beam fell between him and the animal and the flame and smoke drove him were crackling above the roofs, and as the s increased, the scores of carriages were Wild's horse in a bad condition, and then Mr. Ramsay's horse alive and kicking. In less than an hour the flames had been driven out, but
